That means small birds (who are commonly called song birds). Today, the term song is used with regards to other species which would traditionally not have been considered to have any kind of song, but rather a playing or territorial sound (which has the function of the song). An example is the bubbling sound of the Bird songs and bird calls - the sounds of 254 UK bird species.

WatZatSong (What's that song?) is a social site where you can upload a short MP3 audio recording of the song (or record yourself by humming) and other members of the site can then help you guess the exact song name. The suggestions won't come instantly but you can make their task a bit easier by providing more details about the song like the language in which it is sung or the music style.
